Philadelphia Fund Alliance Raises $90K to Support Eagles Autism Foundation

PHILADELPHIA — The Philadelphia Fund Alliance (PFA), a group of Philadelphia-based asset management industry professionals, has raised $90,000 in support of the Eagles Autism Foundation as part of PFA's 10th annual fundraising gala on November 6. The funds will go toward the foundation's mission to support high-quality and impactful autism research and care to improve the lives of individuals and families affected by autism.

"The Eagles Autism Foundation has made significant contributions to supporting those with autism spectrum disorder in Greater Philadelphia and beyond," said Stradley Ronon partner Bruce Leto, a founder of PFA and member of its steering committee. "We are proud to help support such a meaningful cause, which we could not have done without the efforts of our sponsors and PFA steering committee members."

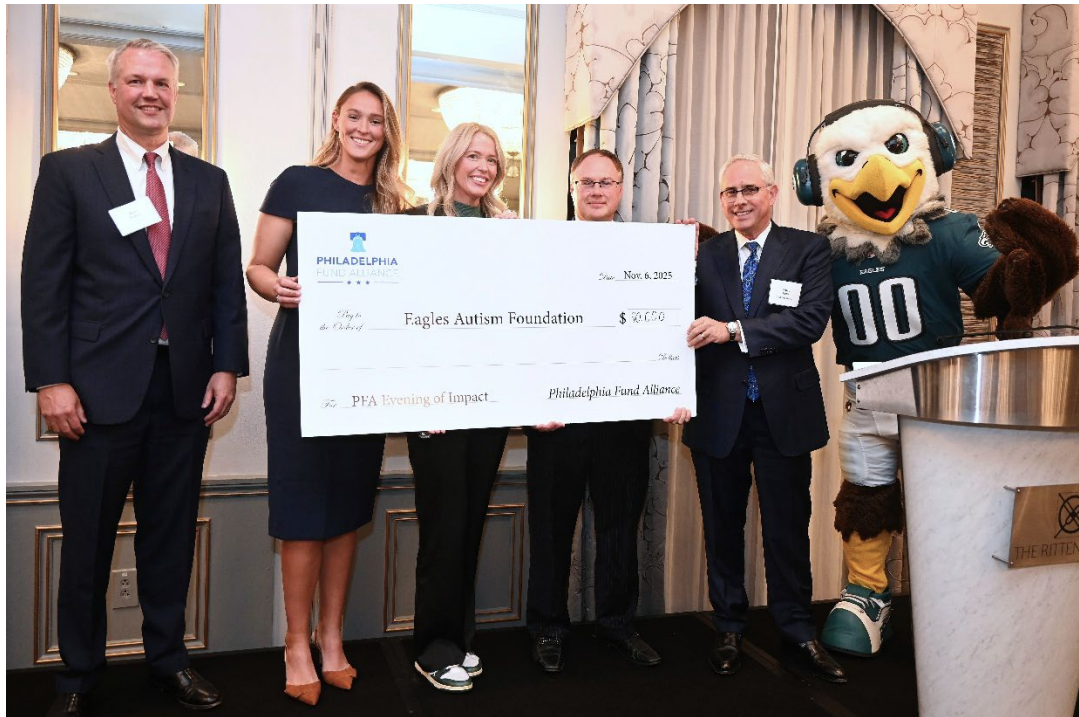

In attendance at this year's PFA gala were Kylie Kelce, ambassador for the Eagles Autism Foundation, and emcee Carli Lloyd, a two-time Olympic gold medalist and two-time FIFA Women's World Cup champion, who discussed the foundation's mission and thanked attendees for their contributions.

PFA gala sponsors included Cohen & Co., EY, Faegre Drinker, Glenmede, KPMG, Lovell Minnick Partners, Macquarie, Morgan Lewis, PwC, SEI, Stradley Ronon, Tait Weller and Troutman Pepper Locke.

PFA was formed to host an annual fundraiser to benefit one or more charities in the Greater Philadelphia area. Last year, the event raised a total of \$100,000 in support of The Malcolm Jenkins Foundation and the Make The World Better Foundation.
